Mr. Gridley spoke of farmers being an independent and freedom loving group. "A merged school will mean the loss of these, which in turn affects our children's character growth," he claimed.

Clifton Springs School Board President Charles Rolland cited figures for building separately. A building for Clifton Springs which will include 12 class rooms, a cafeteria, a boiler room and toilet facilities for all these students will cost approximately $325,000. This is a figure from an architect and is an estimate. The final cost would not be sufficiently higher after all fees are included. To the taxpayer, this means $3.18 per thousand for a new building in Clifton Springs. Mr. Rolland explained that a double play area was built at the time of the construction of the new elementary school and there would not be any cost now. Also, the 36-acre site is already purchased and is adequate for any new building.

The question of obtaining state aid if the schools build alone was asked of the school board members. "There is no law that states state aid can't be obtained if we build alone" was the answer. It was pointed out that the Lima and Avon school districts, which were to merge under the master plan, turned down the merging idea and have obtained state funds to build separately.

Mr. Bauer of Hall and Frank Arnold of Rushville explained the problems they have encountered in their Middlesex Valley and Gorham merger situation. Mr. Bauer feels that merging is a one-way street with no turning back. The next step will be a county-wide school under the state department, he said.

David has also made his mark in extracurricular activities while in high school as a member of the junior play cast, the junior prom and senior ball committee, the Highlights staff and as a member of the basketball and soccer teams.

The boys are sons of Mrs. Leona Nieskes, West Main Street.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: Strawberry time is almost upon us and my family can hardly wait. I wish I knew how to prepare them properly. We always seem to end up with more of the crushed strawberries than the firm.

Strawberry Lover.

Dear Strawberry: Strawberries are really summertime ambrosia. They are expensive and not something which we set on our table every day. Therefore, we gave this much thought and experimentation.

We found the best way to wash strawberries which were to be eaten immediately was to wash them first while the stem and "greenery" was still attached to the strawberry itself. We found that if they were first washed to remove sand, while the stem was still connected, the juice did not run out of the strawberry. Nor were many grains of sand redeposited in the cut end.

Strawberries must be washed well. The little seeds seem to hold the soil. They way you can tell when they are thoroughly washed is:

Float them in a pan of water! Do not put them in a dry pan and run the water on them as this bruises the strawberries. Fill your pan half full of water, dump the strawberries in and then toss them lightly with your fingers.

Then put the pan under your cold water faucet — and a spray-gadget is the best — and let them tumble themselves under the spray faucet. We found that this gets most of the sand off.

Once you see sand in the bottom of this pan, turn the water faucet off. Have another pan set aside which is also half-filled with water. Take your fingers and perfect and I even use scouring powder on the soiled spots.

We are floating on top of the water by are delighted. We even did this time and place them in drawer fronts on the drawers under our sink.

Wood Library Gets $550.04 Return Funds

PHELPS—Wood Library, Phelps, receives $550.04 from the Cooperative Library System. This is the highest cash grant allowed this year.

The system is distributing a total of $2,350 to its 10 member libraries in the area. The grants are based, according to contractual agreement on a base amount of $200, or a 15 per cent reimbursement on money spent during the past year, which ever is greatest. Wood Library spent $3,666.90 and so qualified to receive 15 per cent of this amount.

Other libraries, receiving the $200 base amount, are Allens Hill, Bristol Free Library, Bristol Valley, Clifton Springs, Gorham, Honeoye, Naples, Phelps and Victor.

The reimbursements may be spent in any way the member libraries see fit, since there are no strings attached. This assures the members of complete autonomy, as guaranteed by the Cooperative System plan.

Will Attend College at Allegheny

HALL — David L. Patrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn Patrick, will graduate Sunday from Gorham Central School and plans to enter Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa., in the fall, majoring in mathematics.
