

End comes to summer of camp fun

WILLARD — Camp Onseyawa, the Rotary-sponsored summer camp for handicapped youngsters, ended yesterday after two weeks of fun and instruction. The annual event is held at the Babcock Hovey Boy Scout camp near Willard and involves 23 Rotary clubs in Ontario, Seneca, Yates and Wayne counties.

About 140 campers and 75 counselors spent the time learning to shoot a rifle or bow and arrow, taking part in ceramics, cooking, handicrafts, and even photography programs. All the children participated in swimming to improve their ability or just to have a good time (below).

An average day was divided between the activity periods, meals, swimming and other special programs. A rest break scheduled after lunch gave everyone time to nap, read and write letters, play games, or like Mike Quakenbush (l) and Fred Scheickart, above, just sit around in their tent and watch others go by.

For the kids and the counselors who lived together in small units, it was a good chance to enjoy the outdoor life of camp. There was plenty of fun for all—sometimes there was even too much. Counselor Debbie Liberman (right) found out that on a hot afternoon maybe it's better to take it a little slow and let the others run around with the boundless energy of youth.
