Ontario

The Times wishes to correct an item in the Ontario County police blotter published yesterday.

It was reported that Dianna Brown, 34, of 12 Lafayette Ave., Geneva, was charged with disorderly conduct Sunday.

Information supplied to the Times by police identified the woman as Dianna Brown and as Dianna Curtis. The latter is correct.

Mrs. Deal suffered cuts to the mouth, chin, and left hand and told Seneca County sheriff's deputies she would take herself to the hospital.

Mrs. Deal told deputies she was driving east on Routes 5 & 20 when she struck the car of Willy C. Golden, 60, of 398 Border City Road, Geneva, as he was attempting a left turn into the gas station. Mrs. Deal told deputies she didn't see the car in time to stop. No summonses were issued.

How-to books on using clothing and cosmetics

(The Washington Post)
Clothing and cosmetics always are welcome holiday gifts, but how about a book that gives some insight into how to make the greatest use of the clothing and cosmetics already owned?

There have always been a number of "how-to" books produced each season, but with the success of the Way Bandy, Beverly and Vidal Sassoon and John Molloy books in past years, many more such books have appeared in bookstores this year.

Among the better ones in the assortment:

"Lisanne: A Young Model" by Betsy Cameron (Clarkson N. Potter Inc., $10.95). Young teen-agers will be absorbed by this story of 14-year-old photographic model Lisanne Falk whom they will recognize as a Seventeen magazine cover girl, as well as a model for Wrangler, Revlon and Chanel.

From her start with Ford modeling agency after submitting a 99-cent supermarket photo, Lisanne discusses what modeling assignments are like, from the role of the agency to the stylist, photographer, client, as well as the preliminary "cattle calls" and "go-sees."

"Glamour's Success Book," by Barbara Coffey and the editors of Glamour (Simon and Schuster, $9.95), is a worthy successor to other success-dressing publications, and far better than most. Not tied to any specific formulas, it provides lots of worthy information how to buy what is best for your figure, basic wardrobe suggestions, getting the most use of the clothes you own, telling quality in a garment, and even insight into how to organize your closet.

"The Black Woman's Beauty Book" by Le Verne Powlis (Doubleday, $12.95), gives in-depth consideration of hair care for black women as well as styling, skin treatment, cosmetic surgery and makeup, including a color section on make-overs. Powlis is beauty and health editor at Brides magazine.

"The Make-Up Center Book," Caryl Wendkos-LaTorre (St. Martin's Press, $12.95). The Make-Up Center in New York is a favorite place for aspiring models to learn about makeup or simply do it better. And the same goes for other women, too. The instruction is clearly stated and well-charted for the woman who is willing to take the time to do the very best with her looks.

Goods worth more than $5,000 taken

DUNDEE — More than $5,000 in goods was stolen from the Dundee Hardware Store this past weekend, said state police in Dresden.

Police said entrance was made through a rear door with the thieves taking a wide variety of items, including chain saws, power tools, socket wrenches and kitchen supplies.

The burglary was the second at the store this fall. On Sept. 30 shotguns and other items valued at $400 were taken.

The manager of the store, Jane Peterson, said this morning she is completing an inventory and will reorder the many items needed by Christmas shoppers. She said the stock is covered by insurance.

One change will be made at the store. The wooden door through which the thieves gained entry will be replaced by a metal door, said Ms. Peterson.
